Mr. Alan Gregg,

355 Marlborough Street,

Boston, Mass.

My dear Gregg:

I am delighted to have your notes on oxycephaly, which interest me immensely. I wish that all of us could remember our Homer as well as you have done, and the ugly Thersities certainly seems to have had a "Turmschädel", even if not an oxycephalic skull.

For some years I have been getting together data about these conditions, and your notes will make the most interesting historical allusion that I am aware of on the subject, and you deserve great credit for running them down. Do come in some afternoon and I will go over your "headache" notes with you. It is possible that you might like to use the preliminary notes that I jotted down before the exercise.

With grateful thanks for your letter, I am

Most truly yours,

Harry Cushing
